PHILLIPS THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SYLLABUS DISCLAIMER

The following syllabus is the teaching and learning guide for the last time this course was taught. It will give you a good idea of the descriptions of the course, how it was taught, the reading, the papers and other assignments, the intended outcomes, and the workload. By examining this syllabus and others, you will be able to form an impression of what graduate theological education at Phillips Theological Seminary requires of students.

Due to periodic curriculum revisions, course names and/or numbers may be different on this syllabus than what the name and/or number of the current offered course may be.

This syllabus is provided for your information only. The faculty reserves the right to revise the curriculum, and each professor reserves the right to decide how best to meet the learning goals of the curriculum. Therefore, the following syllabus is an historical artifact rather than a promise of how the course will be taught in the future, or that the course will be taught again.

This course is designed as an upper-level history offering for students who have completed the History of Christianity II - Reformation & Modern course. Students will become well acquainted with at least two periods and/or topics in the twentieth century history of Christianity through studying the biographies or autobiographies of persons who had significant impact on that history.

Students will reflect on how the lives of individuals intertwine with larger historical events and movements and gain deeper insight into how the work of individuals affected the development of the Christian faith over the past century. They should become better equipped to articulate how various past human understandings and decisions affect our lives in our own Christian communities today.

Required Texts  (On reserve in the PTS Library)

HarperSanFrancisco, 0-06-061751-9

Other Materials

Additional short readings may be placed on reserve in the PTS Library and posted on our website for your use.

It is expected that you will read a number of biographies/autobiographies during the course, with the specific volumes to be chosen in negotiation with the instructor over the course of the first several weeks. Choices will depend on which portions of the twentieth century you choose for concentration.
General Information

Due to the nature of online learning, applications for Incompletes are not likely to be accepted.

Every student is bound by the policies of the seminary with regard to academic honesty, as expressed in the PTS Student Handbook. They will be enforced with regard to writing assignments. Any student who is not absolutely certain that he or she can distinguish between appropriate use of sources and plagiarism should rectify that at once. Paraphrasing an author’s work does not necessarily negate an obligation to cite that author as the source of an idea, viewpoint, or piece of information. On the other hand, citing a source does not relieve you of the responsibility to include all quotations within quotation marks. If you are in doubt as to whether you are plagiarizing, find out. I will respond to specific queries. The default penalty for any act of plagiarism is failure for the entire course.

Attendance Policy

In an online class, attendance is measured by posts-per-week on the discussion board or other activities. The instructor sets the minimum number of posts-per-week required for a student to be considered present. Students who fail to make that minimum number of posts will be considered absent for the week. Students absent for more than 20% of the semester cannot pass the course. In this course, three posts per week are required unless other instructions are given on the website. (For instance, there will be different requirements for weeks 3, 11 and 12.) Making three posts means that you log on and make a substantive post (or later in the week, a substantive response) at least three different times.

Accommodations for Individuals with Disabilities

Phillips Theological Seminary is committed to providing equal access to its programs of graduate professional education for all qualified students with learning, physical, medical, and/or psychological disabilities. The Seminary aims to provide reasonable accommodation for qualified individuals with a disability (based on clinical documentation) to ensure their access and participation in Seminary programs. For details, see “Disabilities Policies and Procedures” in the 2009-2010 Student Handbook, pp 17-18 in the print copy. (The Student Handbook is also located on the PTS website, www.ptstulsa.edu Go to the Worship & Community tab in the far left column; select Student Handbook. The policy is found on pdf pages 22-23.) Please contact Belva Brown Jordan, the Associate Dean for Admissions and Student Services, for consultation.
Assignments  (Note: Assignments are always subject to change.)

Each student will choose two particular eras and/or events within the history of 20th century Christianity on which you will focus your study. Some of the possibilities are listed on the attachment to this syllabus. However, it could be possible to negotiate in conversation with me a focus which is not on the list. You will also negotiate which individuals you will study and which books you will read within your chosen First Focus and Second Focus. You will participate in three discussions on your first area of focus and three discussions on your second area of focus.

Late in the semester, there will be two discussions in which you will “speak”/write in the voice of a chosen character, one from your first focus and one from your second. We will use the context of a dinner party attended by the persons chosen by all the students to set the parameters of the discussion. I do not expect you to know how to do this at the beginning of the semester, as we will be working it out together in the coming weeks.

This formula will be used for determining your final grade:

- Participation in Boards for Weeks 1-4 - 15%
- First Focus Discussions - 20%
- Second Focus Discussions - 20%
- Dinner Party part A - 15%
- Dinner Party part B - 15%
- Final Discussion Board - 15%

The deadline for each week’s postings will be at midnight on Monday night. The first board, for instance, will run from 12:01 am on Tuesday, Aug. 31 through midnight on Monday, Sept. 6. IMPORTANT: Blackboard registers time in the Eastern time zone, but your deadlines are measured by time here in the Central zone. When you post at 11:58 pm, and Blackboard says you posted at 12:58 am the next day, you do not need to email me and assure me you posted on time. I am aware of the time zone discrepancy.
